We Want Clear Voices On TV

BEING a regular reader of your widely read magazine. I must praise the efforts of both the Editor and his team of workers for a good monthly production of the magazine. But effort should further be made to see that all state programme schedules both on Radio and Television are published in the journal, for the benefit of all readers.

I as a student also appreciate the efforts being made to enlighten readers on current issues, be they on Education, Economy, History, Health, or what have you. These pieces are very educative, informative and exciting to read; and you should keep it up.

A word for NTV Lagos. The authorities or whoever assigns the news readers should look-out for the best, considering the fact that millions of people view their programmes especially the NTV Lagos News and Network news daily. Viewers like myself are not interested in mimicking voice. We like to listen to natural, and distinct voices.

AGBOBI PAUL,
Suru-Lere.

INDIAN FILMS ON NTV LAGOS

MAY I seize this opportunity to thank the Management of N.T.V. Lagos for their resuscitation of old programmes. In fact, they are much more exciting and classical entertainments. This third quarter is a lively one.

May I however suggest that both Mr. Bode Alalade/Mr. Eno Young should help tell the producer of programme to please screen any INDIAN FILMS on either of their Saturdays or Sundays' Movies at least once in a month; if not weekly. It will be recalled that this films were on the screen sometimes ago. So also were some Nigerian films like "IJA OMINIRA", "DINNER WITH THE DEVIL", "AMADI" and so on. To be very sincere, many film goers in Lagos State will very much appreciate them reintroducing these films.

Why Repeat Programmes?

AS a regular reader of your magazine, I wish to make an observation with regard to NTV Lagos.

It seems the station has no alternative these days than to show us repeat programmes. Does it mean that the station is too poor or short staffed as to enable it produce brilliant programme ideas?

Take for instance, the ever-popular drama programme —

"Winds Against my soul" which has won the hearts of well-meaning Nigerians. How could it have suddenly disappeared from the screen?

I suppose programmes like that should be encouraged. NTV Lagos should therefore be advised to do something quickly about programme repeats.

JOHN VINCENT,
Akoka, Lagos.

INSTITUTION OF HIGHER LEARNING?

I HAVE noticed for some time now that certain words are being uttered by a number of people, especially the news readers both on the radio and television, in a very confused manner. The particular words are Higher Institution of Learning.

Ibadan University Library

Often one hears the reader or even the academicians in our higher institutions referring to any of our universities, say University of Ibadan, as Institution Of Higher Learning.

This is rather confusing and some of my friends have called my attention to this slip and wonder whether such is an error of omission or commission.

The issue then is to know which of the two appellations is correct — Institution Of Higher Learning or Higher Institution Of Learning?

I am strongly of the view that the correct one is Higher Institution Of Learning. There is nothing like "higher learning". If there should be, then there will be "highest learning" which will, in the end make nonsense of 'learning' itself.

There could be something of 'highest institution' but the degree of learning or knowledge is comparative and it is difficult to determine where the degree of learning starts and ends.

I would like to appeal to our media houses and men as well as those in the academic circles to take note of this points and make necessary adjustments in order not to mislead the less educationally privileged.

ISOLA OKIN,
Ilorin, Kwara State.

ADIEU, EDDIE

AS a regular reader of your monthly Magazine — Radio T.V. Times. I sincerely express my sympathy, through this medium, to the family of Mr. Edward Idowu Fadairo, fondly called "EDDIE" in his life-time, by his numerous fans, in the unfortunate death which snatched him from us all on July 31, this year.

EDDIE WITH TEARS AND SORROW I remember thee. You have departed from our sights and never to be seen again but not in our minds, Eddie, we do not know how to bear your absence especially at the scene sports.

The African cup of Nations March is at hand. Eddie who will now fill the vacuum you have now created? May God grant you peaceful rest.....Amen.

English For Juniors

THERE will be ten programmes in the series this term. They are specially designed to meet the needs of the children in the first three classes of the primary school. The new words that the children will come across in the programmes will be explained.

Effects that will enable the children imagine what is being described or talked about will feature prominently. There will be rhymes and songs. Children at home and at school will be given the opportunity to learn the songs and rhymes.

At certain stages in the programmes, the children will be asked to answer some questions on what their radio friends will say. Later their radio friends will give the answers after which those at school and home will be expected to repeat the correct answer. From time to time, the radio teacher solicits the help of the class teacher to explain situations to the children.

The title for the first programme is "At the Hospital". The radio teacher will take the children to the hospital. While there, the children will talk about the buildings, the ambulance, the doctors, the nurses and the people around. This programme comes up on the 19th and 20th September, 1979, at 10.45 a.m. and 4.10 p.m. respectively. September 19 at 10.45 a.m. and 20 at 4.10 p.m.

Talks For Advanced Students

TALKS FOR ADVANCED STUDENTS is one of the Educational Service series. The talks are based on a variety of subjects drawn from the Social, Economic, Political issues of the modern world. The topics chosen are usually of interest to the sixth-formers, extra-mural students and other interested adults. For example, for the term, beginning September 17, interesting topics on Economics have been chosen.

Such topics include: The different forms and functions of money, Functions of Central and Commercial Banks, Private and public enterprises, Factors affecting Economic Development in West Africa and Trade Unions. Broadcasts are on Thursdays at 11.18 a.m. and Fridays at 9.15 p.m.

Understanding The Presidential System

BY October 1, this year Nigeria's first Executive President should have taken over the reins of government of this country. By that time also the new constitution should have become operative throughout the federation.

With this in mind, our first two programmes on ADULT EDUCATION for the September term will feature "The Executive Presidency". The presidential system of government is that in which the head of state, who is also the head of government, and his ministers are not drawn from the members of the legislature. It is unlike the cabinet or parliamentary system where the Prime Minister and his ministers must of necessity, be members of the legislature.

Under the presidential system, there is separation of the Executive from the Legislature. There are certain duties the President is required to perform which make him a potent force in the government. He is vested with the executive authority of the state. He chooses and disciplines his ministers. There are also checks to prevent the abuse of power by the President.

This programme would be of special interest to the students of Government and any adult who wants to keep abreast with the times. The programme comes up every Monday at 8.45 p.m. starting from September 17.

THE SONGS WE LOVE

WHEN you look at the time-table in most primary schools today you will find that singing is not included. This is not peculiar to primary schools alone, a great number of secondary schools also do not make provision for music or even singing. Yet, Nigeria is a music loving country like most countries the world over.

The neglect of music courses in most of our schools has given rise to our singing programme for schools, particularly for pupils in top primary classes. This series has become quite a favourite over the years. The reason being that it features songs in Edo, Yoruba, Igbo, Hausa, Effik, Itsekiri, to mention a few of the Nigerian languages.

"Musical appreciation" The pupils listen and appreciate the beauty of traditional songs

The series used to be known as LET'S SING TOGETHER, but although we now call it THE SONGS WE LOVE. The aims and objectives are still basically the same; that is, to teach Nigerian songs and thereby foster unity among Nigerian pupils. The pupils learn about some Nigerian customs, traditions, festivals, games, superstitions, musical instruments, rhythms and so on.

They learn to listen and appreciate the beauty of songs in languages other than the one they speak fluently. Besides, they are able to pick up and understand words, phrases, and sometimes whole sentences, in the language of a song they have learnt. The result is that they communicate quickly with other pupils when they meet at gatherings like holiday camps, seminars, conferences and interviews.

This term in our Educational Broadcasts, THE SONG WE LOVE is taking on yet another look. We have introduced two songs in English. One is the Nigerian National Anthem: a song that binds every Nigerian citizen together; a song we should all know. Where then in our schools?

"Nineteen seventy nine we hail thee", yes, the year in which so many things are happening, but we remember also that it is the International Year of the Child (I.Y.C.). That is why we have taken it upon ourselves to teach the I.Y.C.

Anthem which was composed by a group of Nigerian children, to a very simple and catchy tune. You can learn the song on October 1, 3, or 5 but here are the words of the chorus—

International Year of the Child
International Year of the Child
A year of hope
A year of faith
A year of dedication
1979 we hail thee
1979 we hail thee.

We invite you to learn a song with us on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 12.18 p.m. during the school broadcasting term. In this way, you would increase your collection of Nigerian songs.

O. Denloye
Ibadan.

Operation Feed The Nation

AS THE name of the series suggests, our broadcasts are specifically designed to supplement the national crusade on Operation Feed the Nation (O.F.N.). In general, the O.F.N. programmes of the educational service of the FRCN teach the growing of essential food crops, fish, poultry and animal farming.

These programmes, although directed to schools, are made so as to be as useful as possible to listeners in general. This should be expected since it is our duty to make every interested listener gain from our programmes.

We are starting the academic year this September with a series of O.F.N. programmes on how forestry can be useful in farming. The second programme in the series for the September term is on Farm-Forestry which specialists call Taungya System or Agri-silviculture. This system simply involves raising forest crops in combination with agricultural crops.

In this programme which is to be on the air on the national network of the FRCN at 10.45 a.m. on Monday September 24, Mr. O.O. Agbade, a Research Officer from the Forestry Research Institute of Nigeria, will be answering questions from our producer, Tunde Thomas. You may be surprised to find that forestry can be very useful in increasing food production in the country.

OPEN STUDIES

UNILAG OPEN STUDIES series is designed for students undergoing correspondence studies at the University of Lagos, Correspondence and Open Studies Unit.

First broadcast days are Mondays at 10.15 p.m., and repeats on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10.15 p.m. Tune in at these periods,

Self-Help Project and Nation Building

By Beatrice Ugwu.

Self-Help project. Trying to build a bridge across a brook.

SELF-HELP is a concept that is deep-rooted in our culture. In the olden days people depended solely on themselves or the assistance of their relations, friends or age-group in building a house or clearing their farms. People did not look up to the king or traditional authority for aid.

It is modernity that has brought the idea of people expecting the governments to cater for all their needs. Be that as it may, the spirit of self-help has never been abandoned by our people. Before and after independence, various communities raised funds either to build a school or provide basic amenities for themselves.

However, it was at the turn of this decade that the concept of self-help reached the ambitious scale at which it has become common-place for communities to launch development funds with targets in hundreds of thousands of naira or even up to a million naira and above. The reason for the new interest shown by the people is the realisation that they should not depend on the government to provide them with all their needs.

The Government itself has encouraged self-help in various ways partly because its resources have limits and also because of the need to inculcate the spirit of self-reliance in the people. And the spontaneous manner in which members of the society have imbibed the spirit of self-help is a very encouraging trend.

In the past eight months, nine development funds totalling about five million naira were launched by local communities in Ogun State for a variety of self-help projects. These include the building of town hall complexes, secondary schools and rural electricity supply. Only a few days ago, when the Lagos-Branch of the Uzoagba Union of Ikeduru Mbaitoli Division of Imo State launched a development fund, they realised on the spot a good proportion of the target of N500,000 to be used in building a boys' secondary school, a health centre and provide pipe-borne water and electricity in their town.

In Plateau State about 1,000 Community projects costing over one million naira were executed last financial year in all the local government-areas. The people of Dikko town in Suleja Local Government, Niger State, have also built a N2,000 postal agency through self-help. The Oniyere Community in the Asa Local Government area of Kwara State recently completed a N50,000 rural electrification scheme on their own.

There are many advantages derived through self-help projects. To start with, as supplements to the efforts of government, they help to accelerate the development of the country and make life more comfortable for the rural population. Self-help projects also create additional job opportunities than would have been the case if the schemes were not undertaken.

First, employment is offered to those who will participate in the construction of the project, such as bricklayers, electricians, and unskilled labourers. After the scheme has been completed another set of people — the clerks, receptionists, security men and skilled workers — are employed. In the rural areas, communal development can check the drift of young people to the already crowded urban areas.

With the spirit of self-help gaining ground, Nigeria will be blessed with a breed of citizens committed to working in partnership with the government for the overall development of the nation.

CENTRAL BANK'S ROLE IN ECONOMIC GROWTH

By Atilade Atoyebi

IT TAKES most people some time to discover the difference in the type of service rendered by the commercial banks found all over the country and the Central Bank. The commercial banks deal with the day-to-day monetary transactions of individuals and organisations while the Central Bank handles national and international financial issues and serves as a clearing house for the commercial banks.

The history of the development of the monetary system in this country shows how far we have advanced to the present stage with 20 years of the Central Bank service on our record. Nigeria's oldest mode of monetary transaction was a system of trade by barter. Under that operation, goods and services were by themselves the only available media of exchange. Later, cowries and manilas were introduced, as economic transactions expanded from the village level to bigger communities. Money in the sense we now know and use, became the only medium of exchange with a legal tender in Nigeria and other British territories in West Africa in 1912. The currency that went into circulation in these areas was issued by the West African Currency Board.

However, on the eve of independence, it was obvious that Nigeria had to take over fully the management of her own economy in which monetary measures form an integral part. Consequently, it was decided by an act of parliament that a statutory body be established to take over the responsibilities of the West African Currency Board. That statutory body was the Central Bank of Nigeria which came into being on the first of July, 1959 when it issued the first Nigerian currency notes. It has since had occasions to issue new notes in July 1965 and January 1968, all based on the British system of pounds and shillings.

Central Bank building.

In 1973, with the decision of the country to adopt the decimal system, the bank issued the new currency consisting of the naira and the kobo with their characteristic units of ten.

Nevertheless, while it is appreciated that the Central Bank is the sole currency issuing authority, the fact must be emphasised that it also serves as the machinery for the maintenance of sound internal and external monetary policies. Internally the Central Bank can be described as the bankers' bank in that it sets the guidelines under which all commercial banks in the country operate. It fixes official lending rates for them and keeps one-fifth of their working capital, as a reserve for the banks.

Over the years, the role of the Central Bank in the management of the country's economy has expanded to the point that it participates directly in the planning and the execution of national development programmes. Externally, the Central Bank of Nigeria manages the country's foreign reserves and protects the international value of our currency.

Perhaps the next logical question is: how well is the Central Bank of Nigeria performing its many functions? The country's vision of economic self-reliance dictates an even development of all the sectors of national economy. Therefore, the Central Bank has been actively supervising the activities of commercial banks to ensure that Federal Government directives on lending policies as they affect the various sectors of the economy are strictly obeyed.

Also, developing countries face the great task of keeping their national currencies stable in the face of fluctuating foreign currencies such as the American dollar and the pound sterling with which many of them conduct their international trade. In the face of such fluctuations, the Central Bank has comparatively ensured the stability of the naira in world monetary transactions. On a monthly basis the bank issues a report reflecting the state of the nation's economy, indicating areas of its weakness and those of progress and healthy development. This is for the guidance of policy makers and for the information of the public.

The Central Bank of Nigeria can therefore be rightly described as the economic watch-dog of the nation. And as it has marked the twentieth anniversary of its establishment, there is the confidence that its cumulative experience will immensely help it in the handling of the country's increasingly complex economic development.

ADULT EDUCATION IN NIGERIA

— Basic Tool For Rapid Social Change

By Adokiye Iyagba

ADULT education should be regarded as a basic instrument to bring about rapid social change and economic development of the nation's resources. The Federal Commissioner for Education at a conference exhorted the heads of adult education department in the nation to evolve a more dynamic approach to enable adult education make a meaningful impact on our society.

No doubt, adult education in this country has developed appreciably from its modest beginnings when it was introduced by the missionaries. For many years, emphasis in adult education was placed on the training of people to read religious literature in local languages. However, a new lease of life was given to adult education after independence when the government took an active interest in the programme. Since then, the approach to adult education has become increasingly productive.

Not only have more people been exposed to the scheme, but the contents of adult education programme have gone beyond religious lessons. Adults are now taught how to read and write. They are exposed to subjects like African History, Health Education and Government.

Both the public and the private sectors are actively involved in the scheme. For instance, the Nigerian Tobacco Company has pilot projects on adult education. Increased productivity was recorded with tobacco farmers who had undergone the company's basic literacy courses and could read and follow the instructions and directions on crop planting, care and harvesting.

Similar projects in functional literacy is already in operation in several states of the federation. One of this is a joint federal and state scheme for farmers in Bendel State. Another is the project for women on poultry farming in Plateau State.

The importance which the government attaches to adult education is reflected in the fact that under the Third National Development Plan, there is provision for the expansion of the existing adult education centres and the creation of new ones. To this end, the Federal Ministry of Education in the 1977/78 academic session gave the state ministries of education ₦171,000. In the last financial year, the state governments were offered an additional sum of ₦170,000.

But in spite of this encouragement the response from members of the public has unfortunately been poor. One of the main reasons for this lies in the fact that adults find it difficult to find time for classes in the evenings. As a solution to this, the heads of adult education departments throughout the federation at a meeting in Lagos last year, considered using the mass media so that many more adults can benefit from education.

What has to be done now is to expand and focus more attention on the inculcation of skills in farming, crafts, management and other professional lines. Adult education classes should teach people their civic responsibilities and the ideals of patriotism. These include the need for environmental sanitation, acceptable behaviour at public places and being a good citizen at all times.

If this is done, it would go a long way in making adult education an instrument of bringing about change favourable to the economic development of Nigeria.

The Tide As Energy Source

By Our Science Correspondent

The tidal wave splashing against the bank at the Bar-Beach. A source of energy?

SCIENTISTS have calculated that the energy of tides can be equal to 1,000 to 2,000 million kilowatts, which surpasses the capacity of all power stations now operating in the world. The first designs of tidal power stations appeared in 1930s. However, the rather high cost of generating power by utilizing the tide for a long time hindered the permanent use of this "perpetuum mobile".

In the 1960s the situation changed radically. The world became alarmed at the depletion of natural resources, including fuel-energy resources. A real threat of an energy crisis appeared. This compelled experts to seriously study the problem of utilizing non-conventional sources of energy, especially the sun, the wind, the heat of the Earth's interior and oceanic tides.

The ocean "breathes" under the effect of the attraction of the moon and the sun, and enormous masses of water move due to this. It is most convenient to make this mass work for man at the mouth of rather small gulfs or bays. For this, it is necessary to dam the threat of the gulf, and the dam will direct water on turbine wheels. On the Canada-US border, in the southern part of the Bay of Fundy, at a nook about four million tons of water daily flow in and are dumped back into the bay. The construction of a tidal station began there in 1935, but was stopped mainly due to the high cost of electricity output. In the late 1960s two tidal stations were commissioned almost simultaneously — one in France and the other in the Soviet Union.

Tidal power stations are quite feasible and profitable. The practically free source of energy and the complete harmlessness for the environment make plans for the development of tidal power engineering very alluring. There is another, purely technical feature which is of great interest for power experts: the speed of the rotation of turbine rotors at tidal stations is not more than 200 revolutions per minute, while at nuclear or thermal stations it reaches 3,600 revolutions per minutes. The difference in the rotation speed doubles or triples the units' lifetime, which in the long run considerably reduces the cost of the energy produced.

Another view of the beach.

EFFECTIVE TAX COLLECTION

-Need to adopt a New System

By Catherine Obi

THERE has never been a time in the history of tax collection in this country that most members of the public have paid without being forced to do so. In fact, even the collection of dues from market women, roadside mechanics and petty traders does not have ready response.

One sure and reliable source of revenue is that of the civil servant whose income is taxed at a source. Unfortunately, the money collected as taxes from this class of workers alone cannot meet financial demands of the country's development. Therefore there has always been the need for the authorities to devise ways of collecting tax from all taxable people — ranging from the petty traders who is self-employed to the big-time businessmen and company directors.

The system to be introduced by the Anambra State Government is designed to yield the type of dividend which tax authorities have been labouring to achieve. Under the plan, market women, roadside mechanics, and petty traders are to be assessed on the spot for tax purposes.

It is a measure that will enable the Inland Revenue Department to keep records about individuals concerned who would not on their own, show up for taxation. It also represents a practical attempt to collect taxes from all categories of people. Many self-employed people who pay their tax at all, as has been revealed in recent years, pay far less than they should.

However, the men who have to go out to do the assessment must be officers of proven integrity who cannot be influenced to under-assess anyone or go into collusion for any other malpractice. It is therefore, necessary to have an Inspectorate

Tax Collector requesting for tax clearance.

Division whose staff will go round on a sampling exercise, to verify the assessment earlier made by the tax officials.

Besides, the Inland Revenue Departments should ensure that notices of assessment reach the people concerned at the beginning of the assessment period. Also worth looking into is the instalmental payment of all types of taxes by those who may not be able to meet their obligations at once.

All that is necessary is for them to pay up the instalments as they fall due.

With such concessions, there would be no justification for people not to pay their tax. Offenders should then be subjected to severe penalties. For example evaders who have reason compelling them to pay in arrears should in addition be made to pay stipulated sums as penalty.

Already, a commendable step is now in progress in the Federation whereby people are being asked to produce tax clearance certificates before they are allowed to carry out certain activities. It is now known that to be awarded a government contract, the businessman must show evidence of tax payment for the last three years. The rationale behind this step is clear. Why should businessmen and professionals be allowed to operate in a community kept going by the tax payers money when they prove to be chronic tax evaders.

In fact, the showing of tax receipts should be made compulsory for people who want to apply for loans, registration and licensing of vehicles, liquor licence, land certificate and other transactions. This is the way to get everyone to pay his or her tax regularly.

This measure will complement other tax collection efforts, such as the system of on-the-spot assessment being introduced in Anambra State. This two-pronged attack on tax evasion can bring about a turning point in the history of revenue collection in this country.

DIARRHOEA NEED NOT KILL

By Peter Ozorio Information Officer
World Health Organization, Geneva.

CHOLERA broke out of its south-east Asian stronghold in 1961, island-hopping eastwards and westwards from breeding grounds in the Celebes, Indonesia. Just about a decade later, while standing virtually on the doorsteps of the western world, cholera took a new path — leaping clear across the African continent, and appearing in 1970 in West Africa for the first time in over half a century.

In the 17 years since the resurgence of that diarrhoeal disease, in what is now referred to as the seventh cholera pandemic, (the sixth ended in 1923) cholera has been reported by 80 countries in all. The number of cases soared from some 11,000 at the beginning of the disease's odyssey, to 65,734 in 1976, the latest full year for which figures are available.

Such a rapid spread has, naturally, put cholera in the news, catching attention and causing consternation, largely because of its link to tourism and trade. All of that, of course, ignores the central fact that cholera, headlines notwithstanding, makes up but a small proportion of diarrhoeal cases the world over.

According to Dr. Dhiman Barua, who is focal point of the World Health Organization's diarrhoeal diseases programme, cholera cases "constitute less than five to ten per cent of the total number of acute diarrhoea cases" reported worldwide. Thus, while public alarm is justified, it is a situation of not seeing the forest for the trees.

That point is perhaps more convincingly made statistically. In the developing countries, diarrhoeal diseases rank among the first three leading causes of children's deaths, taking an estimated five to 18 million lives — and some experts put the figure as high as 20 million — a year. Most frequently deaths among children under three are caused by diarrhoeal diseases.

Another indication of the problem's enormity is the estimate that during 1975, children under age five alone suffered some 500 million attacks of diarrhoea. The deadly nature of the disease is well documented also by the Inter-American Investigation of Childhood Mortality. The twelve-city study of some 35,000 children's deaths published in 1972 attributes 28.6% of the mortality to childhood diarrhoeas.

What makes the death toll so high is that affected children are generally malnourished, a condition that renders them prone to diarrhoea in the first place, and which in turn is aggravated by diarrhoea. "Malnutrition and diarrhoea is a vicious and self-perpetuating circle", says Dr. Barua.

Children between six months and two years are most susceptible to diarrhoea. Already losing body fluids as a result of illness, they are in far too many cases, further weakened by the reluctance of well-intentioned mothers to feed them — acting in the mistaken belief that it is to the good to deny food to the child — but in effect, compounding the malnutrition.

"There is no physiological basis to the common belief that the bowel should be 'rested' during acute diarrhoea", says Dr. N.F. Pierce of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, U.S.A.

Therefore, the reasoning is that as in the developed world, the conquest of diarrhoeal diseases will depend eventually on a multitude of social and environmental factors. Among these are improved nutrition and food hygiene, but particularly the provision of adequate water supplies and sewage disposal systems.

At the end of 1975, according to figures for developing countries, only 77% of urban and 22% of rural populations were served with piped water. And the percentages were even less for sewage disposal services, 75% for urban and 15% for rural populations.

The meaning of those figures is clear: that the foregoing as solutions to the diarrhoeal problem are long-term ones aimed at saving the lives of future young generations.

Revitalising Oil Palm Industry

By Joe Nwokedi

THE Palm Oil has been one of our important agricultural products. Ten years ago, palm produce contributed as much as 20% of the country's total national earnings. But its production has for a long time now been plagued by a number of problems.

These include the scarcity of efficient farm labour, and the fact that production has been limited to small scale farmers who have the capacity to cultivate only a limited acreage. Other handicaps have been the need for a systematic rehabilitation of old oil palm estates and to improve harvesting and processing facilities. No doubt the importance of the petroleum industry as a very paying business contributed to the general neglect of agricultural development until of recent.

In the circumstances, Nigeria which was once a major exporter of palm oil, steadily dropped from that position until she became world number two importer of the product. In fact statistics show that given the present rate of domestic demands Nigeria will be compelled to import 140,000 tonnes of palm oil annually from 1985 unless an appropriate step is taken to check the deterioration.

It is in order to arrest this situation that the Federal Government in 1977 set up the Palm Produce Board along with other commodity boards. The Palm Produce Board is to ensure that adequate supply of fertilizers, improved seedlings and other inputs are made available to farmers. To protect the board against abuses by traders and produce smugglers who have been a menace to the progress in the industry, the government has given the board the exclusive right to the production, sale, purchase and processing of palm produce.

It is also expected that the River Basin Authorities which are to provide the necessary infrastructure for agricultural projects, will enhance the establishment of model oil palm projects and support the World Bank-funded Federal Oil Palm Company at Ode-Irele in Ondo State.

In addition to the efforts by the Federal Government, the state governments have also taken up the challenge of reactivating palm oil production. Ondo State government for instance, is implementing a number of rehabilitation programmes. Palm Oil production is also being encouraged in Cross River and Anambra States through their Agricultural Development Corporations.

On its part, the Palm Produce Board has organised meetings in Oyo, Ondo and Benin to discuss ways and means of revitalising the oil palm industry. The board intends to provide barvesting and training services to all palm farmers and also improve on its own effectiveness throughout the palm producing states. It has taken steps to eliminate the activities of unscrupulous middlemen and smugglers by buying directly from the palm producers through licensed buying agents.

These agents are required to arrange delivery of palm fruits to oil mills without delay after the purchase. In addition, the board is establishing sub-offices and buying centres close to oil mills to ensure efficient co-ordination between it the agents, and farmers. It also operates the world-renowned Institute for Oil Palm Research in Benin, Bendel State, which has carried out a lot of studies on breeding.

As for the farmers, the guaranteed prices which is ₦80 per metric ton for loose palm fruits and one naira for a head-pan, would help them to budget and plan well in advance. They could even procure bank assistance in the form of loans on the assurance that the prices of their commodity would remain steady at least for the next twelve months. Such assurance is necessary if palm farmers are to be induced to return to the plantation. To promote proper local utilisation of palm oil the board has appealed to co-operative bodies to take interest in the production of palm oil.

With the attention now being given to the development of oil palm, this country should be able, in the near future, to meet its domestic needs, have surplus for export and eventually regain her position as number one world exporter of palm produce.

INSURANCE

UNDERSTANDING INSURANCE

THE insurance business in this country, to a large extent, is young and growing but it is also promising. It generated a premium income of about £14 million in 1968 and about £180 million last year.

The Federal Government recognises the role which insurance can play in the national economy, hence it decided in 1974 to participate in equity shares of all viable foreign-owned insurance companies in the country.

From papers presented at a conference which was attended by delegates from West Africa, Europe and the United States, the consensus is that there is a great deal of lack of education about the insurance policies on the part of many members of the public. It is the lack of education and adequate information that has generated in the public a lot of deep ill-feelings in connection with the operation of the insurance business.

Communication in the insurance business is supposed to be a two-way affair between its practitioners and the insuring public. Most insurance personnel have never chosen an audience and explained to it in detail, a class of insurance. Again many policy holders hardly bother carefully through the contents of their policies.

The Insurance Institute of Nigeria in making efforts to ensure that insurance education is spread across the country. This is one of the reasons for its annual educational conferences. But the short-comings of these gatherings in which educative and well-written papers are presented is that the wealth of experience and knowledge is always directed to the people within the insurance industry and not to members of the public.

Many of the men and women who property or shops worth thousands of naira are ignorant of the benefits of insurance against such occurrences as theft or fire outbreaks. It is also not generally known that attempted theft could be covered by insurance. Policies can also be taken out on any mishap or misfortune which is regarded as natural or an act of God.

Another problematic aspect of the insurance industry is manpower. There is hope however that this problem will be effectively tackled when the training schools of the National Insurance Corporation of Nigeria and that of Nigeria Reinsurance Corporation become operational. The establishment of the West African Insurance Institute in Monrovia, Liberia, by the English-speaking West African countries in conjunction with the United Nations Commission for Trade and Development is another practical approach to tackling manpower shortage in the sub-region.

With these prospects, the people of this country can expect a better future in the insurance industry equipped for public enlightenment and satisfactory service.

FRCN Training For Journalists

By Joe Nwokedi

THE re-organisation of the news training programme is a significant step taken to reflect the federal character of the FRCN. Under the programme, the four zonal centers, Lagos, Enugu, Ibadan and Kaduna — can at a time send two to three news staff for training in the school while each of the nineteen states is allotted a place.

The plan is to enable all newly created state radio stations to train up as many of their news staff as possible. To this end, more courses have been introduced to complement the existing ones. In addition to the basic news training course for news assistants and the advanced news training for graduates, and senior sub-editors in the reporterial and editorial units, two new courses are available.

One is a weekly workshop for senior sub-editors on the network news services. The workshop is geared towards improving the techniques of editorial review and solving the problems of the newsroom. The other course which is yet to take off will be for editors. It will seek ways of developing better and more efficient co-operation between the news divisions in all the states and other departments of the FRCN

Also open to the staff reporters is an advanced production course organised by the programme department.

Since the re-organisation of radio broadcasting in the nation enrolment in the training courses has increased tremendously as the states begin to avail themselves of the training facilities. The number of participants to each course has jumped to 26 which is 100% increase from the previous year. Admissions into the courses are usually through nominations by the state stations.

To ensure that proper training is given to the participants, a comprehensive scheme of work has been prepared for the various courses organised by the school. The news assistant trainees, for instance, will in addition to lessons on news writing and reporting, receive lectures on broadcasting techniques, communication laws, ethic and selected issues of mass communication.

During the ten-week in-service training course, participants also have the opportunity to work with modern facilities in the FRCN Network News Services, the Current Affairs Unit, the Voice of Nigeria and the FRCN News. This serves to familiarise them with the broadcasting equipments and techniques and help them to develop innate communication skills. They are also encouraged to keep abreast with developments which are likely to be of value to them in their career as radio journalists.

An advanced programme for young graduates and senior sub-editor features lectures on in-depth reporting, news editing and current affairs programmes. It also promotes discussions on broadcasting management and decision-making. The course is intended to prepare the participants for possible appointments to management positions in the broadcasting industries.

In all, the effective co-ordination of these programmes is done through the Controller Staff Training assisted by two resident lecturers. These lecturers are backed up by a team of experts in radio broadcasting as guest lecturers. They include directors, controllers and senior editors of the corporation stationed in Lagos. Efforts are often made to invite personalities from other media houses in Lagos and from the state radio stations also as guest lecturers. The classroom work is supplemented with other extra-mural activities. These are in the form of visits to other media houses, industries or places of national interest in Lagos and its environs.

On successful completion of the course, graduates receive certificate indicating that the knowledge gained from the course qualifies them for responsible journalistic work. There is no doubt that the corporation realises the pressing need in this country for trained radio journalists who can effectively carry out the duty of informing and educating the listening public. The present strides in the training in the area of broadcast journalism as therefore a conscious effort to breed for the nation positive, responsible and job-oriented journalists.

TIME WAITS FOR NO ONE

IT IS not unlikely that most Nigerian record hustlers, especially those resident in Lagos, must have realised by now what a fascinating discovery Christiana Essien's latest album "TIME WAITS FOR NO ONE" has since turned out to be. This, incidentally, happens to be her third in under two years.

It is also not unlikely that out of this group an appreciable proportion must have suddenly realised that that album is more of a realisation of a star vehicle (to borrow the trade jargon) than the wholly entertainment funk-piece it had been originally thought to be.

Its release was well timed especially bearing in mind the fact that the album arrived on the scene just at the time when the TV comedy series, THE MASQUERADE, in which Christiana played the popular role of "Apeno", appeared to be headed for the rocks.

Christiana is an upcoming Nigerian entertaining star who deserves every encouragement to reach the top. It is, for instance, fairly easy to be carried away by her acting and even, as most of her fans now begin to discover, her singing.

"Time Waits For No One" is no doubt Christiana's greatest achievement, so far and more so, when it is seen against the background of a star vehicle which it has become. This is perhaps easily evident in the obvious way her powerful but warm and soothing voice keeps dominating almost every sensitive spot in the album — what, on the other hand, cynics may quickly spot as a calculated flaw. But, perhaps, it'll be necessary here to add rather quickly that Christiana happens to possess the sort of voice that most fans hardly find boring. It persistently inspires and moves.

The main strength of the album is its simplicity and directness. It starts off with the title track "Time Waits Christiana Essien in action.

For No One", an uncompromising rock fret with strong, steady beat, uncomplicated rhythm and a lot of guitar freaking. It quickly progresses as the subsequent tracks — "Mr. Pride", "My Love Can Move Mountains", "Love I'll Never Find Again" and "Love is a Game" — show more definition and appeal.

The title track is no doubt the album's showpiece and will probably be promoted with a greater zeal. Some of its other attractions include excellent drum work shared between Eddy Ofeyi and Uncle Bee Jay, the sophistication of the organ, synthesiser, violin and piano (W. Roy) and then the soothing background voices. Less obvious and much more pleasing is Fela Dey's strings, lingering, wheeling and waiting on the singer like a host of birds. The themes are the usual ones of love and life — and it's remarkable to note that all the songs in the album were composed and arranged by Christiana herself.

Throughout, however, the piano sprinkles, scatters, and rattles. Influences continually jump out of the grooves. But as the music progresses generally, the love theme becomes the more prominent and more personal. The music tends to interlock and behind it comes the bashing, tapping, thin sound of drums. Meanwhile, Christiana cries out, as if relieved of some mental strain: "My love can move mountains. Oh, yes, I mean every word..."

But love is sadly too limited a thing to conclude with. So, the flip side takes off with "Moment of Happiness" which unfortunately fails to start with enough momentum. However, after this track momentum is gained and quickly soars to unprecedented heights in the remaining three tracks, "Struggles", "Can't Give You Another Chance" and "Song From My Mind."

Christiana has put so much into this album to give it the sort of popular appeal it now enjoys. Happily enough, the ready market is there — all it now moans for is the usual push. I have no doubt that this is also already happening.

COMBATING FLOOD MENACE

By/ Osayi Osawa

THE problem of floods cuts across much of this country. During this season, there have been reports of floods in Lagos, Ibadan, Abe, Enugu and Kalmalo in Sokoto State.

There are two major causes of the floods affecting our towns and villages. The first is a lake, river or stream overflowing its bank as a result of heavy rains. The other reason is lack of adequate drainage or the blocking of water channels during the construction of roads, buildings and so on.

The menace of floods is such that lives and a lot of property have been lost in some parts of the country. In some towns it is not only the roads that are flooded but also living apartments, offices, schools and hospitals are water-lodged during the rainy season. At least on two occasions in the past sixteen years, the Ogunpa stream in Ibadan had overflowed its bank and claimed lives and property. A few weeks ago, the village of Kalmalo in the Owadabaawa Local Government area of Sokoto State was flooded when the lake in the town overflowed its bank. The people of the village, situated on the border between Nigeria and Niger Republic, were cut off from the two countries by the flood.

However, it is a great relief that the authorities are tackling the problem meaningfully. In Sokoto

State, the Military Administrator directed the Ministry of Agriculture to open the spillway of the Dam in Kalmalo so that the water in the reservoir could fall to a level that would no longer affect the people. As a long term measure, about 10,000 people in the affected area are being resettled.

For its part, the Federal Government is spending about N4 million to rehabilitate 140 roads in the Federal Capital where many streets are in deplorable condition and suffer from floods. The Lagos State Government is already providing a central drainage that would take care of most parts of the Lagos metropolis while some local governments are handling some roads within their areas of jurisdiction.

One thing that needs to be mentioned is that the provision of a drainage system should precede the tarring of the roads. Experience in parts of Lagos has shown that without good drainage, repairs have to be carried out on the roads every year.

It has also become necessary that landlords and tenants join in the efforts to provide drainage. In addition, landlords must provide dust bins in their houses to stop people from throwing garbage into the drainage system as this prevents water from flowing. The resultant effect is that when water gets to the brim, it covers the main road, thereby worsening the flood situation. Flooded roads also impede the free flow of traffic and this, in turn has adverse effects on the economy besides the discomfort it causes pedestrians, cyclists and motorists.

The fact that the contract for the construction of a drainage system and the tarring of roads must be awarded to people of proven ability cannot be over-emphasised. The shoddy work done by some contractors has been responsible for the need to cater for some roads at short intervals. Also it must be ensured that proper provision is made for roads and a drainage system before an area is approved for development as a residential or industrial estate.

Electronic Mains Voltage Corrector

An Electronic Line Corrector at work

A LESS expensive and more compact alternative to a conventional constant-voltage transformer has been developed by a British firm to stabilise single-phase mains supplies powering electrical and electronic equipment.

Known as the ELC (Electronic Line Corrector) the device is particularly suitable for use in areas subject to wide fluctuations in mains supplies. It will handle the high transient starting loads of electric motors, such as those powering the compressors of refrigerators, freezers and coolers; it also copes with the low mean/high peak pulse loads to which, for example, colour television receivers are subject. Other fields of application include the medical and office equipment sectors where the device can be used to stabilise supplies to such electronic units as intensive care oscilloscopes and word processors.

The device is essentially a tap-changing transformer with six taps and sophisticated electronic circuits which sense both the phase and the level of every incoming cycle of mains voltage and correct it, if necessary, so that output voltage is maintained with  $\pm 6\%$  of the nominal mains supply. It is supplied in three versions for equipment working on nominal mains supplies of 220V, 240V and 110V which are subject to voltage variations over the ranges 145V — 255V and 155V — 265V (model 500), or 72V — 125V (model 250) respectively. It is rated continuously for 2A and is insensitive to changes in mains input frequency over the range 47 Hz to 63 Hz. Response time is within one cycle of input frequency and efficiency is better than 96%, the makers say.

Nominal output of model 500 is 500VA — from a unit measuring only 265 mm long x 205 mm wide x 115 mm high and weighing only 6 kg. When considered for motor load applications, the ELC's performance is equivalent to that of a 2500 W constant voltage transformer weighing about 100 kg and measuring about 305 mm long x 305 mm wide x 915 mm high. It can cope with a 10 A surge for one second and is protected by an external fuse against surges in excess of 10A. Nominal output of model 250 is 250VA.

A domestic refrigerator operating, for example, on a nominal 220V mains supply with a rating of 150 VA for its compressor can draw as much as 5 A (1100 VA) when first switched on. The ELC will cope with this transient starting surge — and continue to supply 220 V even when the mains supply drops to 145 V. It will also eliminate the danger of motor burn-outs and equipment failure resulting from operation below 220 V.

In the same way, the device will maintain the correct voltage level to colour TV receivers. Many of these receivers designed to operate on a supply of 200V, for example, will operate erratically below 210V and cease to function altogether below 220V. Their rectifying circuits can draw current pulses as high as 10 A — with an on/off ratio of 1:10 — with a mean power consumption rating of 250 W. However, when fitted with the ELC, the receiver will operate satisfactorily (with the additional benefit of extended tube life) even when main supply drops to 145 V.

The device will stabilise voltages with equal efficiency when fitted to refrigerator compressors and colour TV receivers operating on nominal supplies of 110 V or 240 V and subject to voltage fluctuations over the ranges 72 V — 125 V and 155 V — 265 V and subject to voltage fluctuations over the ranges 72 V — 125 V and 155 V — 265 V respectively. Installation is easy and can be carried out by any competent electrician.

HOUSING PROBLEM IN NIGERIA

—Call For Lasting Solution

NO DOUBT, one of the major problems facing fast developing communities is that of housing.

This problem identified in this country as far back as the early 1960's with the establishment of housing estates by the then regional governments and government agencies. Such projects were mainly concentrated in the regional capitals of Kaduna, Ibadan, Enugu and Benin. The Lagos Executive Development Board (LEDB) was of course one of the pioneers of housing projects.

Some five years ago, with the housing problem becoming more biting the Federal Military Government had to throw in its full weight to deal with the situation. Its housing programme, which formed part of the Third National Development Plan, was pursued with the vigour and urgency it demanded. As a result, thousands of Federal Government-financed blocks of houses were erected in various parts of the country, with Lagos getting the lions' share.

The intervention of the Federal Government on the housing issue became necessary because all measures initiated to check escalation in rents proved ineffective. The reason was that there were more demands for living accommodation than was available.

And so the provisions in the edicts and the decree on rent control were out-manoeuvred by landlords who had the advantage over tenants desperately in need of accommodation. Apart from the direct involvement of the federal and state governments in the building of housing estates, a further step had been taken to create wider opportunity for home ownership through The Federal Mortgage Bank.

In the case of the bank, it is re-assuring that one important area it intends to direct its attention is that of providing houses for people in the low income group. It is in realisation of the need for such low-cost housing scheme, that the Federal Military Government through the Mortgage Bank is starting a pilot project in Bauchi State which will cost N23-million. The World Bank is providing 50% of the cost while the Bauchi State Government will invest 30%.

One of the interesting features of the programme is the projection for two bedroom bungalows which will cost not more than N5,000. From the abuses of the past in such experiments, a strong provision should be made to ensure that such houses are occupied by their actual owners.

The high cost of buildings in this country now has been blamed on the general rise in the prices of materials. This situation, of course, calls for determined efforts to conduct research into local materials which can be developed as building materials at reasonable prices. Tested local materials, such as burnt bricks, which can be produced in abundance in this country should be exploited fully to reduce building costs.

In a broad sense, housing should be seen as part of urban and rural development. It should be emphasised that one of the greatest legacies any nation can bequeath to its population is adequate provision of shelter. It is unfortunate that many Nigerians have not lived to see their dreams of owning a house come true. If the Bauchi experiment succeeds, it means that many Nigerians will see the fulfilment of such dreams, thereby bringing to an end the tormenting experience of being a tenant for life.

TRANSPORTATION

Road Safety Corps

—A Laudable Idea

By Ralph Akinjola

ACCORDING to statistics, there are now 850,000 vehicles in the country. With good roads, accident rates which are already alarming will continue to increase unless something concrete is done.

The solution from the realities of the present situation lies in creating special task forces like the Oyo State Road Safety Corps which was established two years ago by the state government.

The corps which was created to ensure the safety of lives and property on the roads in the state was very effective right from its inception. In fact, within a few months of its existence, it established much a reputation that motorists sat up and tried as much as possible to comply with traffic regulations.

This was due to many factors. Members of the corps patrolled the roads at regular intervals and were devoted officers who performed their duties without fear or favour. Those found guilty of excessive speeding, dangerous driving, wrong parking, over-loading and other offences were promptly arrested and dealt with. Apart from bringing sanity to the roads, there was a drastic reduction in traffic accidents in Oyo State.

This record of the road safety corps made other states in the federation such as Lagos, Plateau and Bendel to send people to Ibadan, to study the operational procedures of the Oyo State Corps. Also members of the organisation were mandated by the management of the Lagos-Ibadan expressway to operate on the new road to ensure that motorists comply with the speed limit.

But of recent, things have not been going on well with the Oyo State Road Safety Corps. In the last few months, the organisation has not been very active. Its officials complained of lack of money to buy necessary equipment or to maintain those they have. The officials also said that they needed more personnel to cope with the demands of their duty.

Members of the corps did not particularly enjoy working under civil service procedures which they said affected their operations. There were occasions when some senior members of the corps threatened to resign in protest against alleged unnecessary interference in the execution of their duties from some quarters. The personal intervention of the Oyo Military Administrator usually saved the situation from getting out of hand.

It is in this light that the granting of autonomous status through which the corps now assumes full responsibility for its day-to-day operations is an important development. The organisation was formerly part of the office of the military administrator. Under the new arrangement, a governing body, headed by the deputy chairman of the Oyo State Executive Council has been mandated to manage the affairs of the corps and formulate policies for it.

The control of the administrative staff of the corps is now vested in the director. The new measure will no doubt go a long way in revitalising the road safety corps and make it a more efficient body. Already, it has been announced that a substantial vote in the current financial year was to be released soon to help in the repair of all faulty equipment and the purchase of new ones. It should also be possible for the corps to recruit the number and type of personnel needed to facilitate smooth operations.

There is no doubt that a special body, such as the road safety corps is what is required all over the country to control traffic in the cities and towns, check reckless driving and accidents and deal effectively with those who operate vehicles which are not road-worthy.

The setting up of Road Safety Corps of well-trained personnel and dedicated citizens drawn from different walks of life as obtained with the Oyo State Road Safety Corps should therefore recommend itself to all the state governments in the federation.

NTV LAGOS RESUSCITATE OLD PROGRAMMES

-Some Regulars Retained

Viewers on Channel 10 Lagos are in for a third quarter of a new set of entertaining, informative and educative programmes beginning from Sunday, July 1, 1979. Alongside these, the station, in response to your requests, has resuscitated some of its old programmes while also retaining some regulars - all to enable you have pleasurable evenings.

In addition, Nigerian Television Lagos has increased its viewing period to 76 hours per week - the highest now in the country. The station starts off earlier than before on Sunday at 12 noon with a repeat of JOURNEY TO UNDERSTANDING which comes on air at 9.35 p.m. on Tuesdays. This is a slot that has endeared itself to many, in its attempt at exploring the various myths surrounding diverse philosophical thoughts, helping man to attain higher and better life by appreciating the perfect laws of creation.

WA-ZO-BIA, taken individually, means 'come' in the three major Nigerian languages - Yoruba, Hausa and Igbo respectively - is the title of a new programme fixed for every Sunday at 1.00 p.m. It is designed to make both young and old acquire a working knowledge of the three main languages through simple songs, plays and straight teaching.

Apart from the NEWS PANORAMA at 7.00 p.m. everyday and the NETWORK NEWS at 9.00 p.m., the station will, at 4.55 p.m., give you NEWS TIT BITS - a short summary of the very latest happenings in the world.

MIXED BLESSINGS is a half-hour situation comedy series based on mixed marriages, featuring Thomas - a white engineering graduate and Susan - a black social worker - played by Nigeria's Muriel Oduntan. It will show difficulties that young people experience at marriage and the extra difficulties occurring in a mixed marriage. It comes on your screen every Sunday at 7.45 p.m. - bet you, this you can't afford to miss.

At 9.35 p.m. every Sunday, the Station will feature GUEST OF THE WEEK - a personality interview with specialists in their own fields to enlighten viewers about current issues around.

On Mondays at 5.00 p.m. VARIETY ENTERTAINMENTS - a programme for children - features a variety of activities including drama and songs by various schools in Lagos State. Apart from this, there is a line-up of other local and foreign programme for the kids. These include THE WORLD OF CHILDREN coming your way at 5.00 p.m. every Friday. This sets out to probe the strange world of the little ones. In it, some children are featured to "probe" the world of the elders in an attempt to reduce the tension between children and the adults. Other's are NATURE AND SCIENCE, KIDS FROM CAPER, SCOOBY DOO, MR. PIPER, ABC OF ECONOMICS, THE ROVERS and JUNIOR DRAMA between 4.00 and 6.30 p.m. during the week. The popular ANIMAL GAME is also being features.

Another in the package for children is AN HOUR WITH MAMA at 5.00 p.m. on Tuesdays. It is an arresting aspect of the African family in the way traditional beliefs and morals are passed down to the younger generations, using the effective medium of story-telling. The kids will be entertained and informed about their societal responsibilities which have their roots in our culture.

At 6.00 p.m. every Tuesday, NTV Lagos will feature INVENTIONS focusing on inventions by Nigerian students and the "egg-heads" in our universities. This will afford Nigerians the opportunity of seeing what could be achieved technologically given the incentive, encouragement and right atmosphere within which to operate.

ARTISTES SHOW CASE returns to Channel 10 every Wednesday at 9.35 p.m. with a little modification. This time the artiste or artist performs for all to see and appreciate his or her artistry. This will be repeated on Monday evenings at 4 o'clock.

TALK BACK is also back on your screen every Friday at 9.35 p.m. to answer some vital questions that are raised about our programmes by you viewers. A 'station face' will be on the screen to answer your questions. We welcome comments, questions and reactions from you on our programmes. Your responses to this request will help us in our services to you.

NTV Lagos comes out this quarter with a new drama slot titled ADIO'S FAMILY every Friday at 8.30 p.m. It is a series of light-hearted drama sketches revolving around a middle-class family. It has a strong undercurrent of seriousness aimed at presenting the drama of life as it is unfolded in the family situation context.

On Saturdays, the station opens early at 11.00 a.m. with SPORTS INTERNATIONAL followed by BANDSTAND, at 1.00 p.m. punctuated with TALENT HUNT COMPETITION before CHANNEL 10 SPORTS at 3.00 p.m.

ON STAGE will come on at 4.00 p.m. that same day before another sporting slot NETWORK SPORTS.

Another weekend treat you can't afford to miss is DISCO '79 taking the place of "Saturday Rendezvous". It will try to examine the disco phenomenon and its electronic impact on the young and young at heart. The bunch of Disco Wizards will come to our studio, with their "in-tunes and in-movements", to entertain with a Master of Ceremonies in attendance.

Regulars being featured this new quarter include TAKE A TRIP, MATTERS OF THE MOMENT, SPECIALS, MEETING POINT, FOR BETTER FOR WORSE, FEMINE FANCIES, LAGOS REPORT, KINNI NKAN, COMEDY, VOICES and of course your darling VILLAGE HEADMASTER. On the network slots, you will have THE PROGRESS REPORT, THE DEBATE and FACE THE NATION among others. We wish you a happy viewing.

OUR RATE CARD

For Your Effective Advertising

AFTER years of quiet circulation during which a systematic study was undertaken to ascertain readers' tastes and advertisers' requirements, we are proud to present today a magazine which, we hope, has successfully translated into form your highly esteemed ideas and suggestions.

The current editions of RADIO/TV TIMES reveal a history of steady progress and improvement in quality, standard and scope. In fact there is every ground now for one to say "Oh Yes! The RADIO/TV TIMES has made it!" We are not stopping at that either.

We have more reasons than many a publisher to cry over "INFLATION" and rising production costs. But where "Satisfaction First" (for readers and advertisers) is the over-riding principle, profit occupies only the next place in our policy.

This explains why, in spite of the extremely keen competition in the field of commercial advertising, RADIO/TV TIMES can still afford to accept advertisement at a rate below one kobo to reach one thousand readers. What is more, when you consider the aggregate positive effect of an advertisement in RADIO/TV TIMES, supplementing your combinations on radio and television, the resultant massive impact is quite obvious.

The advertisement rates tabulated below took effect from 1st of April, 1977. We look forward to your substantial patronage as soon as possible, while assuring you of prompt satisfaction always.

i. THE JOURNAL: The "Radio/TV Times" is the monthly programme journal covering all the radio and television stations, published by the Federal Radio Corporation. The journal is now 25 years old on the market. As a supplementary guide to programmes' schedule, the readership of this journal is understandably tied up with the radio and television audience - a well balanced cross-section of the society, representative of all ages, sexes, income brackets, intellectual levels and tastes. That the current size of this audience has grown into millions is now common knowledge.

Apart from highlighting Radio/TV programmes, the journal seeks to generate public interest in healthy social events, as well as local, national and international issues, with emphasis on Africa. But while taking in its strides the wide range of programmes offered by the radio and television, "Radio/TV Times" is breaking new grounds of its own to embrace a wider range of interests in order to provide greater satisfaction for its ever expanding readership.

Public demand for the "Radio/TV Times" in recent times has been so extensive that the possibility of stepping up the current circulation in stages to keep pace ultimately with the radio and television audience is being actively explored.

ii. PUBLICATION TIMING: 1st day of month of issue.
